Also Manneses Play Sonatas and Opera Orchestras Perform.

Of the minor events in the musical world of yesterday the recital given by Miss Herma Menth, a young pianist and a pupil of Busoni, attracted a modand a pupil of Busoni, attracted a moderate sized audience to Mr. Ames's thrice delightful Little Theatre. Miss Menth gave a varied programme and an interesting one. She did not seek to scale the heights, but what she offered gave the impression of a talented young artist of abundant temperament and force.

She played among other things Mozart's "Pastoral Varié," a gavotte of Sgambati, two Brahms rhapsodies, three Chopin études and selections by Liszt and Moszkowski. In all these she displayed a moderately fluent tech.

List and Moszkowski. In all these sne displayed a moderately fluent technique and some brillance of execution. When her experience equals her talent she will probably be heard with even greater pleasure.

David and Clara Mannes at their second violin and piano sonata recital in the evening in the Belasco Theatre introduced a novelty in what was called an "Ascension Sonata" in A major by Cecil Burleigh. This comintroduced a novelty in what was called an "Ascension Sonata" in A major by Cecil Burleigh. This composition was in three movements, each of which was on the programme denominated by a quotation from Script-

The exact programmatic application

The exact programmatic application of the quotations was not upon a first hearing altogether evident, but the sonata itself proved a graceful and well made composition, which did not stray upon the pathways of the moderns. It received a sympathetic performance by Mr. and Mrs. Mannes. The other numbers on the programme were the Handel Sonata in E major, Op. 94; the Schumann in A minor, Op. 105, and the Reger Suite, "im alten Styl," in F major. The audience was a large and exceedingly interested one. The regular concerts took place at the Metropolitan and the Century Opera House. At the former Miss Beatrice Harrison, the English 'cellist, was the outside artist. She gave great pleasure by her rich tone in Tschaikowsky's "Variations sur un Theme Rococo." The other artists appearing were Miss Eriode Hermal and Luce Bette. The other artists appearing were Miss Frieda Hempel and Luca Botta. At the Century Mark Hambourg and the Russian Symphony Orchestra were the participants.

SAYS OUR HOLIDAYS ARE DEGENERATING

Rabbi M. J. Gries, president of the Central Conference of American Rabbis, speaking before the Free Synagogue at Carnegie Hall yesterday morning, deplored the degeneration of the American holidays. He spoke on "Lincoln and Washington," and pointed out that their hirthdays should be reout that their birthdays should be re-membered, not for the celebration of the days, but for the powerful messages they bring. "Unfortunately," Rabbi Gries said,

"Unfortunately," Rabbi Gries said,
"all the holidays on the American national calendar have been transformed by the wordly spirit of our generation to public holidays. The day of the Declaration of Independence and our national Day of Memorial are not consecrated as days of noble thought of country and of national uplift, but are descrated by almost universal merrymaking and feasting, pleasure-seeking and sport."

The speaker compared Lincoln, born to poverty and disadvantage, with Washington, born to privilege, advantage and fortune. Both of them, are tage and fortune. Both of them, as said, were great Americans.

"What a lesson the public men of our own time might learn from the life and memory of Washington. Both he and Lincoln were lovers of their coun-
